

Christian Ethics Books for Africa!

Bible College Consultation, Mukhanyo, 20 June 2017

*John Child, George Whitefield College

Discussion in Groups

- 1. In your College what do you cover in your Ethics course/s?
- 2. List the key ethical issues/challenges in your context?
- Feedback

- What ethics books have you found helpful?

An explanatory note

- Instead of handing out a list of books I've photographed book covers. To find out more about the books & publication details you'll need to google Amazon, find reviews or look at the book itself.
- I spoke off the cuff about many of the books & sometimes we discussed the books in the workshop. This meant only covering half the slides.
- I purposely covered many more topics than we had time for.
- The books selected were based on my personal library & the GWC library. Selection was based on what I thought was good, significant or seminal, books by well-known authors & those recommended by others or that looked good. They are largely from evangelical sources.
- I've tried to find a few good books on each topic to help you personally or to help build your College library. There are countless books on most of these topics. Most are fairly new but there are a few older volumes.

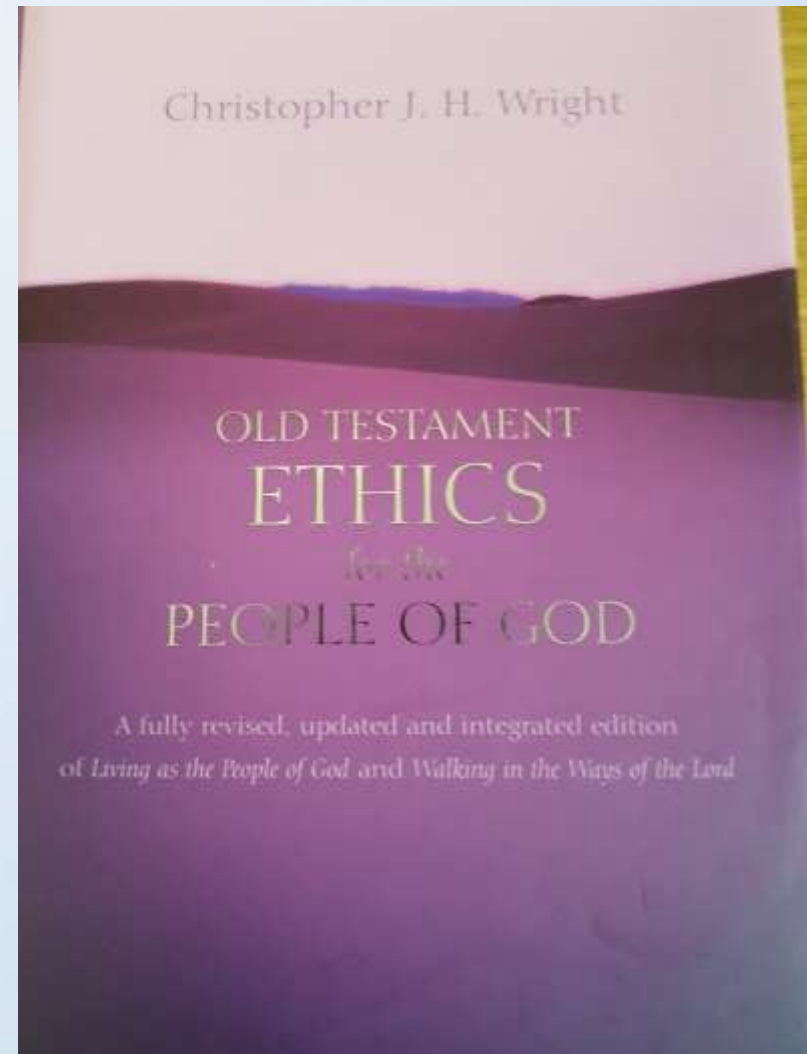

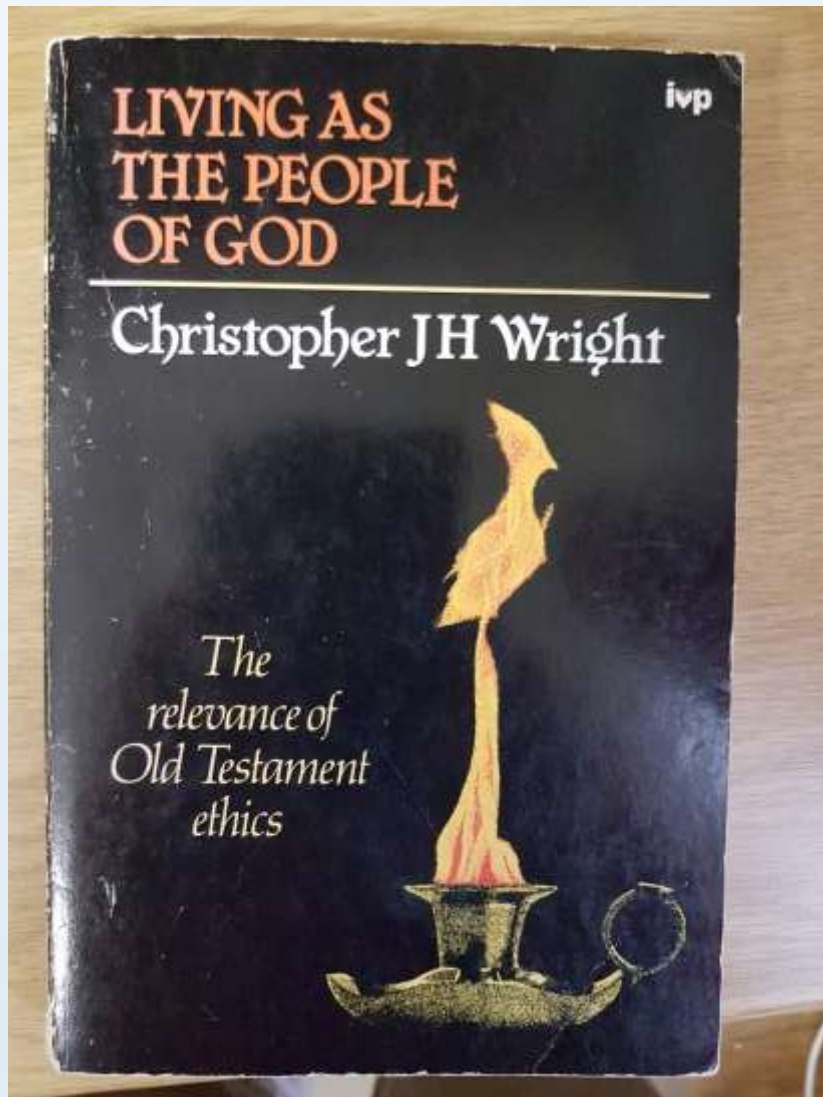

An explanatory note 2

- I've tried to find one or two short books on most topics as time is limited & often we just need an introduction to orient us.
- There are a few underdeveloped topics like rape, where I found 2 booklets on how to report & handle rape in South Africa.
- Older, well-known topics like abortion, I virtually ignored except for one fine short book by Randy Alcorn.
- I also largely omitted gender roles, male-female differences & the role of women in the church, more a theological issue. And, of course, there many other topics I could have included like medical ethics & bio-ethics but which are of less relevance to us.
- Topics I should have included are lobola, the land issue, Colonialism, witchcraft, work & rest, culture & freedom of religion.
